Living The Dream

No longer a dream, but the trek of a lifetime, Rudely Interrupted takes its talent and music to the east coast of Australia, winding gradually through the laneway festival and more. Following the vibrant music scene of many venues up the east coast the band has practiced tirelessly to play it loud to genuine rock fans.

Despite the intellectual disability of five band members their gigs bring out packed clubs and fans eager to share in the excitement. Rudely Interrupted first single (insert the single name) released in 2007 was an outstanding success! The band is made up of (four) people with disabilities and Rohan Brookes Disability Support Worker of the year 2007 all of whom live for music and the music program offered by St John of God Accord. Liz Bishop CEO said of Rudely Interrupted "their music is amazing, uplifting and delivered with pure emotion".

Rudely Interrupted have just released their new EP "Don't Break My heart" and is available from (insert where). The band members are so excited about the release of the EP and are ready to take it to the masses of fans out there.

Rehearsals are over and the creative sounds of Rudely Interrupted are ready for the stage once again. The beats are hard hitting, the harmony, expressive and the rock element takes control of the audience with a superb pulse. Rudely Interrupted's compelling performances are not to be missed. The group is living their dream.

Touring now from Canberra ACT to Brisbane and return for final concert of the Great leap Forward East Coast Tour at the Sydney Laneway Festival. For more information on the tour visit www.rudelyinterrupted.com

ABOUT St John of God Accord

St John of God Accord originates from a strong history of hospitality through the energy and commitment of our original sponsor, the Hospitaller Order of St John of God Brothers, established in 1953. In 2007 we plotted a new course, strengthened in unity with the sisterhood of St John of God Health Care to become an inspired leader in our industry.

Working to improve quality of life by maximizing opportunities for the people we support, we have developed innovative and best practice in and around 50 locations throughout Victoria that provide accommodation, respite, day programs and employment support. We aspire to being the best disability support service possible.

Through our four service principles, Choose ... Do ... Connect, and Built For Me, we provide comprehensive and integrated support service to people with a disability, and continue to turn aspirations and desires into reality. This is our mission.
